

My Internship at Wrist

Anton Høgedal Møller
Sales Intern

At Wrist, I have gained valuable insights into navigating the challenges of a global marketplace. Hands-on experience is crucial for learning, and Wrist prioritizes professional growth by giving interns the opportunity to tackle global challenges.

Adapting to Challenges Globally

Working at Wrist goes beyond orders and transactions – it is about navigating the complexities of a global marketplace. Each day brings unique challenges that sharpen my adaptability and problem-solving skills. As a Sales Intern, I quickly learned the importance of adapting to last-minute changes that requires fast deliveries to customers, providing me with valuable real-world experience in managing time-sensitive orders and ensuring customer satisfaction with confidence.

Evolving with Global Experience

With a background in International Trade and Marketing, I am driven by a passion for working in global companies with a meaningful mission. This has given me a strong foundation to apply my skills in an unpredictable and challenging environment, taking on responsibilities such as:

- Sending price estimates and converting them into orders
- Keeping in touch with ships and agents to ensure smooth communication
- Ensuring no delays in the delivery process

My day-to-day tasks continuously push me to grow and think on my feet, preparing me with confidence in a global company.

Understanding our Customers

As I continue to evolve in my role, I realize that sales is more than just delivering a successful order – it is about building a relationship with global customers, expanding my knowledge in:

- Customer dynamics and business strategy
- Sales negotiation and closing techniques

Supportive Team Leads to Growth

At Wrist, no two days are the same, making work exciting. With a supportive team, I am encouraged to think quickly and act decisively in a fast-paced, global setting. My team aims to create a safe learning environment for interns, making me grow professionally and personally through meaningful work that aligns with my interests and aspirations. Commitment to learning empowers interns like me to step up when challenges arise.
